

REACH COMPLIANCE

VPF products are REACH-compliant

The EU's REACH Regulation (Registration, Evaluation, Authorisation and Restriction of Chemicals), which is based on the principle of entrepreneurial responsibility, stipulates that from 2008 onwards no chemical substances may be placed on the market unless they have been appropriately registered beforehand.

As a downstream user we are not obliged to register our "articles". However, we do identify fully with the aims of REACH and work exclusively with suppliers whose raw materials have been appropriately registered.

This also applies to materials that are listed in Annex XIV of the REACH regulation as substances of high concern. According to our current state of knowledge and the supplier information, our self-adhesive materials contain no substances of very high concern in a reportable concentration of >0.1% as specified in the list (most recent version of SVHC).

Working in close cooperation with our suppliers, we will continue to assure compliance with all provisions of the regulation in the future. On this basis we can promise our customers that self-adhesive materials and coatings from VPF are REACH-compliant.
